A QUESTION THE NATION MAY BE CALLED UPON TO CONSIDER.

The dynamic excitement continues in England, and it is not to be wondered at. Dynamite can be made, sold and purchased there only under carefully-guarded laws, issued by a bureau that requires strict guarantees of the legitimacy of the use of the explosive compound. These restrictions were later so rigidly applied that infamous men who wished to use the article to murder and destroy, found it exceedingly difficult to procure it at all.

But the most watchful care will not prevent all ill use of the mixture. Crime is cunning, and often than otherwise thwart the best-laid schemes to prevent its commission.

The bringing in of dynamite from abroad is extremely hazardous, as it requires the exercise of the greatest possible degree of care in handling. The scoundrels desiring it for their nefarious purposes were not patriotic enough to assume these risks to any great extent, and so they set up a secret factory near Birmingham for the manufacture of the more costly nitro-glycerine.

This factory has been unearthed, and it is believed that others remain to be found. Some of the prisoners now in custody as dynamite fiends have been, by circumstance and direct testimony, connected with much certainty with this factory and with the secret, unexplained carriage in rubber bags of explosive compounds into the very heart of London. On Saturday we remarked upon the effect of the dynamic policy upon Irish politics, and then gave expression to the thought that the situation might become such as to call for the interposition of our own Government in the matter of muzzling the dynamite fiends in America, who are giving material and moral support to a like crew operating against, and within the limits of a friendly nation. A renewed examination of the subject convinces us that this is altogether likely to be brought about—that the United States Government, as a matter of course, will be called upon, that these dynamic conspiracies continue—and we believe that they will—to act in concert with other nations for the adjustment of the International Code, or the revision of extradition treaties, as to cover the cases of the fiendish conspirators, who now make their residence in America a safe cover for the sending out of explosives to be criminally used in other nations, and merely to advance such atrocious ends. That such conspirators are with us now will pretend to deny; that they are all in constant communication with the assassins on the other side is equally certain; that they render them material aid, they openly boast. It is not surprising, therefore, that there should exist, as there does among the English people, much soreness over the fact that the means to enable murderous assaults to be made upon their households should be openly solicited in America. It is no wonder that "Head Center" Stephens and Mr. Sullivan should become alarmed and denounce dynamite agents. They clearly perceive that the diabolical practices will work such a revolution of sentiment as will place the Irish in England in imminent danger. If lives are lost by some of these explosions we shall not be at all surprised to see a war of expulsion break out, and the Irish be driven from every town in England at the point of the knife. It is probable that just such a climax is desired by the dynamic conspirators.

RETALIATION.

France and Germany now both exclude certain of our products from their markets, on the ground that they are poisonous in many instances, and that exclusion of all is therefore necessary. The last Congress prohibited the introduction of adulterated teas into the United States, and now since the action of the nations noted is so pronounced and unfair against our big products especially, it is probable that the exclusion programme will be extended next winter, and that we shall hear of bills being introduced of a retaliatory nature, and aimed at the exclusion from our ports of certain French and German products, Now, retaliation knows no end. It is the law of revenge and passion, and has neither reason nor coolness in its composition.

Should we therefore retaliate we must expect a blow in return, and it will be our bounden duty to pride and passion to strike back, and so there may be no end to the matter until a conference for a treaty, with a call for a parley, results. This is the inevitable outcome of all such contests.

To the ordinary mind it would appear wise to take counsel together first.

She fell to the floor, then turned the pistol on himself and blew out his own brain, falling dead on the steps. MISCELLANEOUS.

CAUGHT OF THE FLY.

Woman's Love.

"Oh, this is woman's love, its joy, its pain."

On gaze on him, the loved one, and to trace
His image (which no time can efface)

On thy heart's tablet; then when he is gone,
My heart is left alone, and my soul's peace.

To see him smile, to watch his speaking eye,

Gazing on thine, as if it asked reply :

"Is he not a man? Is he not a soul?"

And feel thy beating heart respond to the sound.

To lean confiding on his arm and know,

If danger threatens, twill avert the blow;

To listen for his footsteps, and to hear

The throb of his heart, with a thrill of pain;

To hear at last his step, and rise to greet

The one thy heart yearns fondly thus to meet;

"The one thy heart yearns fondly thus to meet;

"The world forgetting, the world forgot."

Then comes the parting, the tearful adieu;

Then comes the parting,
